

TOO MUCH HOMEWORK

April 2010

Issue No. 16

sicomac.edu

ALL SCHOOL BOOKS SHOULD BE ONLINE BECAUSE HEAVY BACKPACKS CAN CAUSE SERIOUS INJURIES FOR KIDS.

It seems to me that all school books should be online because heavy bags can lead to back injuries for kids. Heavy backpacks can cause serious back injuries like scoliosis. They can also cause bad posture because when kids bend over, it affects their posture. Also, heavy bags are actually very dangerous for kids. Schoolbooks should be online!

One reason is that too much homework causes kids to have heavier backpacks, which can cause serious back injuries. Textbooks should be online so that kids don't get hurt. In fact, tiredness and back pains result from heavy bags. Doctors say an average child's pack can weigh as heavy as forty pounds. Therefore, teachers shouldn't give too much homework.

Another reason why school books should be online is that when a child has a lot of books in their backpack, they tend to hunch over so their backpack doesn't fall off. When children hunch over, their posture will become a lot worse. Also, when a child bends over, it causes the spine to compress completely unnaturally.

One more reason to have school books on the computer is that kids usually carry their backpack on one shoulder when their bag is too heavy. It is said that this is highly dangerous and it is very important for kids to carry their backpacks over both shoulders. Also, health experts declare that children should be taught the right way to wear a backpack.

In my opinion, school books should definitely be online so kids don't have very heavy backpacks. One reason is that so kids don't hunch over when their bags are too heavy. In addition to that, it simply causes kids to have heavier packs. Also, kids tend to hunch over when their bags are heavy and that causes bad posture. All in all, around the world teachers are causing children to have heavy backpacks, and we should stop it!

