¿Sabía usted que?

- Es fácil mantener una buena salud dental. Visitar a su dentista para chequeos dentales y limpiezas regulares, cepillarse 2 veces al día, usar hilo dental diariamente y comer una dieta nutricional son los factores clave para tener dientes y encías saludables.
- Cuando usted va a su chequeo dental regular, su dentista también lo examinará para detectar cualquier señal de cáncer oral.
- Las enfermedades de las encías son una de las principales causas de pérdida de dientes en adultos y también se ha relacionado con enfermedades del corazón y derrame cerebral. Cepillarse 2 veces al día, usar hilo dental diariamente y teniendo sus chequeos y limpiezas dentales regularmente es la mejor forma de prevención contra enfermedades de las encías.
- Una alimentación balanceada es importante para una buena salud dental. La azúcar de los refrescos y alimentos no nutritivos se combinan con las bacterias en nuestra boca provocando ácidos que atacan el esmalte de los dientes. Esto puede causar caries y enfermedades de las encías.

¿Sabía usted que?

- La Academia Americana de Pediatría, La Academia Americana de dentistas pediátricos y la Asociación Dental Americana recomiendan que todos los niños tengan su primera visita dental en su primer año.
- Los vasos entrenadores, al igual que los biberones, hacen que los líquidos se queden detrás de los dientes delanteros, y pueden causar dolorosas caries en los niños. Cerca de los 18 meses los niños deben usar un vaso regular.
- Los dientes primarios o “dientes de leche” son importantes por muchas razones. Ellos no solo ayudan al niño a hablar claramente y a masticar naturalmente, también ayudan en la formación de un camino que los dientes pueden seguir cuando están listos para salir.
- Cada 6 meses se recomienda un chequeo para prevenir caries y otros problemas dentales.
- Los selladores trabajan rellenando las aberturas entre las superficies de masticación de los dientes. Esto bloquea las partículas de alimentos que podrían quedar atrapados en los dientes, causando caries.

Mission Statement

"Achieving the highest level of individual and community health through collaborative action."

Did you know?

- Maintaining good dental health is easy. Seeing your dentist for regular dental check-ups and cleanings, brushing twice a day, flossing daily and eating a nutritional diet are the key factors in having healthy teeth and gums.
- When you go for your regular dental check up, your dentist also screens you for any signs of oral cancer.
- Gum disease is one of the main causes of tooth loss in adults and has also been linked to heart disease and stroke. Brushing twice a day, flossing daily, and getting regular dental check-ups and cleanings are the best prevention against gum disease.
- Proper nutrition is important for good dental health. The sugars from soft drinks and non-nutritional foods combine with the bacteria in our mouths which produces acids that attack tooth enamel. This can lead to cavities and gum disease.

Did you know?

- The American Academy of Pediatrics, The American Academy of Pediatric Dentists, and the American Dental Association recommend that all children have their first dental visit by age one.
- Sippy cups, just like baby bottles, allow liquids to pool behind the front teeth, and can cause painful cavities in children? Children should be using a regular drinking glass by 18 months.
- Primary, or "baby" teeth are important for many reasons. Not only do they help children speak clearly and chew naturally, they also aid in forming a path that permanent teeth can follow when they are ready to erupt.
- A check-up every six months is recommended in order to prevent cavities and other dental problems.
- Sealants work by filling in the crevasses on the chewing surfaces of the teeth. This shuts out food particles that could get caught in the teeth, causing cavities.
