

STOCKS CONTINUED:

Bob's interests vary. He believes that there should be some other type of entertainment during the noon hour beside dancing, even if the students have to pay for entertainment. He suggested movies. Bob also commented, "I wish we could have a football team like other schools do."

Bob's favorite subjects in school are sports, physical education, and the journalism class. He plays on the ninth grade soccer team

Bob holds a permanent job on the Rough Rider staff as sports editor.

Bob plans to go to college and study journalism.

We don't have to fear for our lives anymore. The lights are here!

Staff to confer

The Rough Rider's advisor, Mr. Hamill, and two staff members, Dick Guske and editor Nancy Constance, will attend the Oregon High School Press Conference.

The conference will be held October 10 and 11 on the University of Oregon campus to acquaint high school journalists with ways to improve their school papers.

WHAT'S IT?

Recently several Roosevelt students were asked what a calyx is. These are their answers:

- W. Devereaux: Install it on a car.
- P. Pomeroy: Sell it.
- A. Valer: Sell it.
- N. Baldwin: Divide into five pieces.
- C. Washburn: Eat it.
- D. Hartman: Wear it.
- J. Gjesvold: Eat it.
- K. Biestel: Bash it over John Jullfs' head.
- I. Hsu: Hit it.

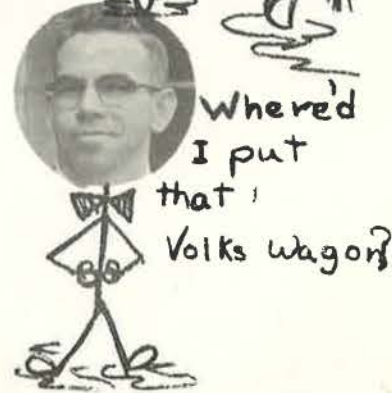

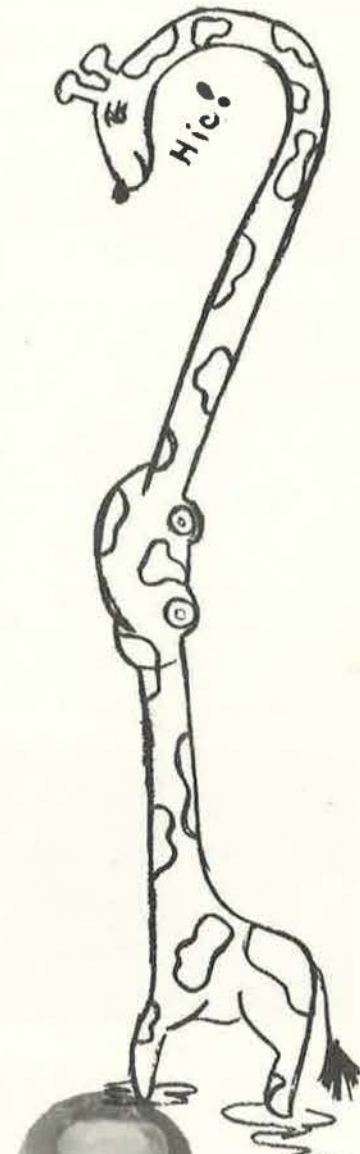

A calyx is the outer part of a flower.

Election Results Present Challenge

Each year as we elect our class officers we are reminded of the continuing responsibility these officers have for participation in school government and activity; for the need for careful planning that must take place before any successful program can be adopted; and for the part each officer must play in leading his class to a satisfactory completion of the goals set for that class.

Just being elected to a class office does not mean that the job is finished. A true leader will instill in his classmates the desire to do a good job in any endeavor. He will lead his class by setting an example all will be willing to follow, and he will have the courage to offset unsatisfactory proposals with concrete thinking and counterproposals which will be to the greatest benefit to all of his class.

Each of you newly elected officers for the coming year face a tremendous challenge as your terms of office begin. I urge you to accept this challenge and show through your leadership that the students did not err in selecting you to represent them.

To all of the students at Roosevelt I ask that you give your fullest support to the officers whom you have selected and when they ask you for help, however small the job may seem, that you will give to the best of your ability. Only with the complete cooperation of all can a successful program be attempted and carried through to completion.

Let's all get behind your elected representatives and make this the best year Roosevelt has ever had.

Yours Vice-Principal

EDITOR RIDES

Education is the accumulation of knowledge. It is the passing on of our heritage and our forefathers' hopes for a better world. It is the strengthening of our country through the undiminished efforts of our teachers, parents and friends. Education should instill the ideals of our forefathers. Their hopes for our future should be satisfied through it.

The students of today are the salvation of tomorrow. Education is their hope. That is why they must receive a full, unhindered education so that they may do their part to keep the world a fit place to live in.

Let us dedicate these years to the greatest gift-education for all. For when we lose this gift, and cannot get it back, we understand only then how valuable it is.

A free nation remains free only as long as education for its youth is not forbidden. We of today must know and understand this so tomorrow will be free also.

Harold W. Ruopp.

(Editor's note: Last issue the article about Mrs. Rees was omitted from the stories of the four new teachers by mistake. With all due apologies we now include it.)

Mrs. Rees has filled in the vacancy left by Mrs. Lowry in the Home Economics room.

Mrs. Rees taught four years at John Setter High School in Los Angeles before coming here. She obtained her bachelor of science degree at Oregon State.

Her interests include piano playing and viewing football games.

An American

(Editor's note: The definition of an American is not easy to give. But, now, in the face of Little Rock and the Formosa Crisis, we should give serious thought to this question. This description by Harold Ruopp seems appropriate.)

An American is one who believes in the right of men and women of whatever creed, class, color, or ancestry, to live as human beings with the dignity becoming the children of God.

An American is one who believes in the right to be free; free not only from crushing coercions and dictatorships and regimentation, but free for that way of life where men may think and speak as they choose and worship God as they see fit.

An American is one who believes in the right to vote, the right to work, the right to learn, the right to live, and--what is equally important--the right to be different; for he knows that if we ever lose the right to be different we lose the right to be free.

An American is one who believes in democracy, not only for himself but for all his fellow Americans. By democracy he means not simply the rule of the majority but the right of the minorities; and those minorities have rights, not because they are minorities but because they are human beings.

An American is one who believes in the responsibility of privilege. What he asks for himself he is willing to grant to others. His creed is not alone "Live and let live," but "Live and help live."

An American is one who acts from faith in others, not fear of others; from understanding, not prejudice; from good will, not hatred. To bigotry he gives no sanction, to intolerance no support.

The only question the true American ever asks is not, Are you a Protestant or Catholic, Gentile or Jew, white or colored? but, Are you an American? If you are, then give me your hand, for I am an American too.

SCIENCE SCENE

A new science club started last summer has been carried over into this school year by a few ninth graders. The members are all ninth grade boys and will continue to be ninth grade boys until some person in the seventh or eighth grade shows enough interest and ability to enter.

The club, called Iuvenes Irati, was organized for the sole purposes of furthering scientific study and bettering the recognition of the sciences in this school. It is hoped that there will be found in the seventh or eighth grade persons interested in this type of an organization so that it can be carried over from this year to the next. Members are installed by being nominated. If the candidate is agreed upon by a majority of the members he will take a quiz in a field of science of his choosing. If he is capable or thinks he is capable, he should contact Dick Guske or Steve Moore or come to Mr. Williams' science room Monday after school. If he goes through the nomination and passes the test successfully, he will become a member. At the present the club is still organizing for the school year, but after it procures enough members it will begin its program. A bi-monthly and yearly project will be worked on by the members who will be put into a classification according to what they are best at. Private projects of a few members will also be done.

SPOTLIGHT ON THE STAFF

By Sharon Bergman
As usual, each new year of school, there are a number of new students entering our school.

This year Roosevelt was lucky to obtain a student by the name of Bob Stocks.

Bob lived in Portland up to the time that school let out, and then his family moved to Eugene. He has two brothers, Gary, 16, and Brian, 9.

SPORTS

By Bob Stocks

I am new here at Roosevelt, and I hope to get acquainted quickly enough so that I may be able to bring you readers a more interesting sports column.

In this column I want to bring you not only sports news but a look behind the scenes.

The purpose of this column is to acquaint the students with the sports functions of our school. Included will be occasional comments from Miss Shinn, Mr. Scott, and Mr. Ward, our P.E. instructors. Their comments will be centered on intramural and school team sports.

After three weeks of practice, the soccer team seems to be coming right along, although Mr. Ward doesn't feel we're quite ready for the Wilson game October 2. The game will have been already played by the time the Rough Rider is published, so you readers can form your own conclusions about this year's team.

Practices have been spent mostly on the fundamentals of soccer, which take in passing, dribbling, goal kicking, and team work. The latter is one of the most important factors in a successful team.

You readers remember, a good team deserves moral support from the students, so come to urge our team on. The players do their part in playing, you do your part by coming and enjoying the game.

Rough Work, eh?

PEP CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

The Pep Club held their first meeting Monday and nominated candidates to run for the offices of president, vice-president and secretary. All three grades participated. The candidates made speeches on Friday before the election. The following are the results of the election: Debby Marsh, president; Phyllis Noice, vice president; and Chris Bradley, secretary.

A word about Pep Club dress. All students who are members of the Pep Club should wear school colors for all games if possible. This consists of red skirts or culottes and white blouses. The Pep Club officers will wear white stitch-downs and red sweaters.

GRADE COMING EVENTS Library

By Alison Wood

Miss Mattley, the 9th grade advisor, gives this schedule for the ninth grade.

The first ninth grade party will be on November 21. There will be fewer grade parties this year, and more school parties.

The all-school assembly sponsored by the ninth grade will be on May 19.

The final party is May 29.

9th 8th

The 8th grade class will take an active part in school affairs this year. There will be the usual participation by the 8th graders in Girls' League and Boys' League, in sports and in service on school committees. On November 14 and April 3 there will be class parties for all 8th grade students. The newly elected class officers will plan the parties and be in charge of most of the things the 8th graders do.

and 7th

Several things are new in the library this year. Miss Jewell, the new librarian, has added a checkout desk and a record player. Soft background music of a classical nature is played at different times during the day.

If you want to check out a book and wonder where all the pencils went, they are hanging on chains at the side of the tall desk. You are also welcome to the bookmarks there. Bookmarks are much better for an book than pencils, rulers, or the habit of putting an open book face down on some strawberry jam.

The books in our library, for the most part, are very good ones. They are interesting and informative. It's a privilege to use them.

MR. & MISS R. J. H.

Last issue's Mr. R.J.H. was King Martin. Last year King was the seventh grade vice-president. He enjoys all sports very much and played on the K.V.A.L. baseball team during the summer. He played on the seventh basketball team and was freethrow champion.

Peggy Price was Miss R.J.H. for the last issue. She is on the son squad and the Rough Rider staff. She enjoys all sports, especially swimming and horseback riding. Last year Peggy had an A average in all subjects and hopes to do as well this year.
