"A Wrinkle in Roosevelt's Time"

The Banks of the Amazon--Spring 1969

*Theodore Roosevelt
Junior High School
Eugene, Oregon*

Meta Morpho Sis

*“...a change
of form,
substance
or structure.”*

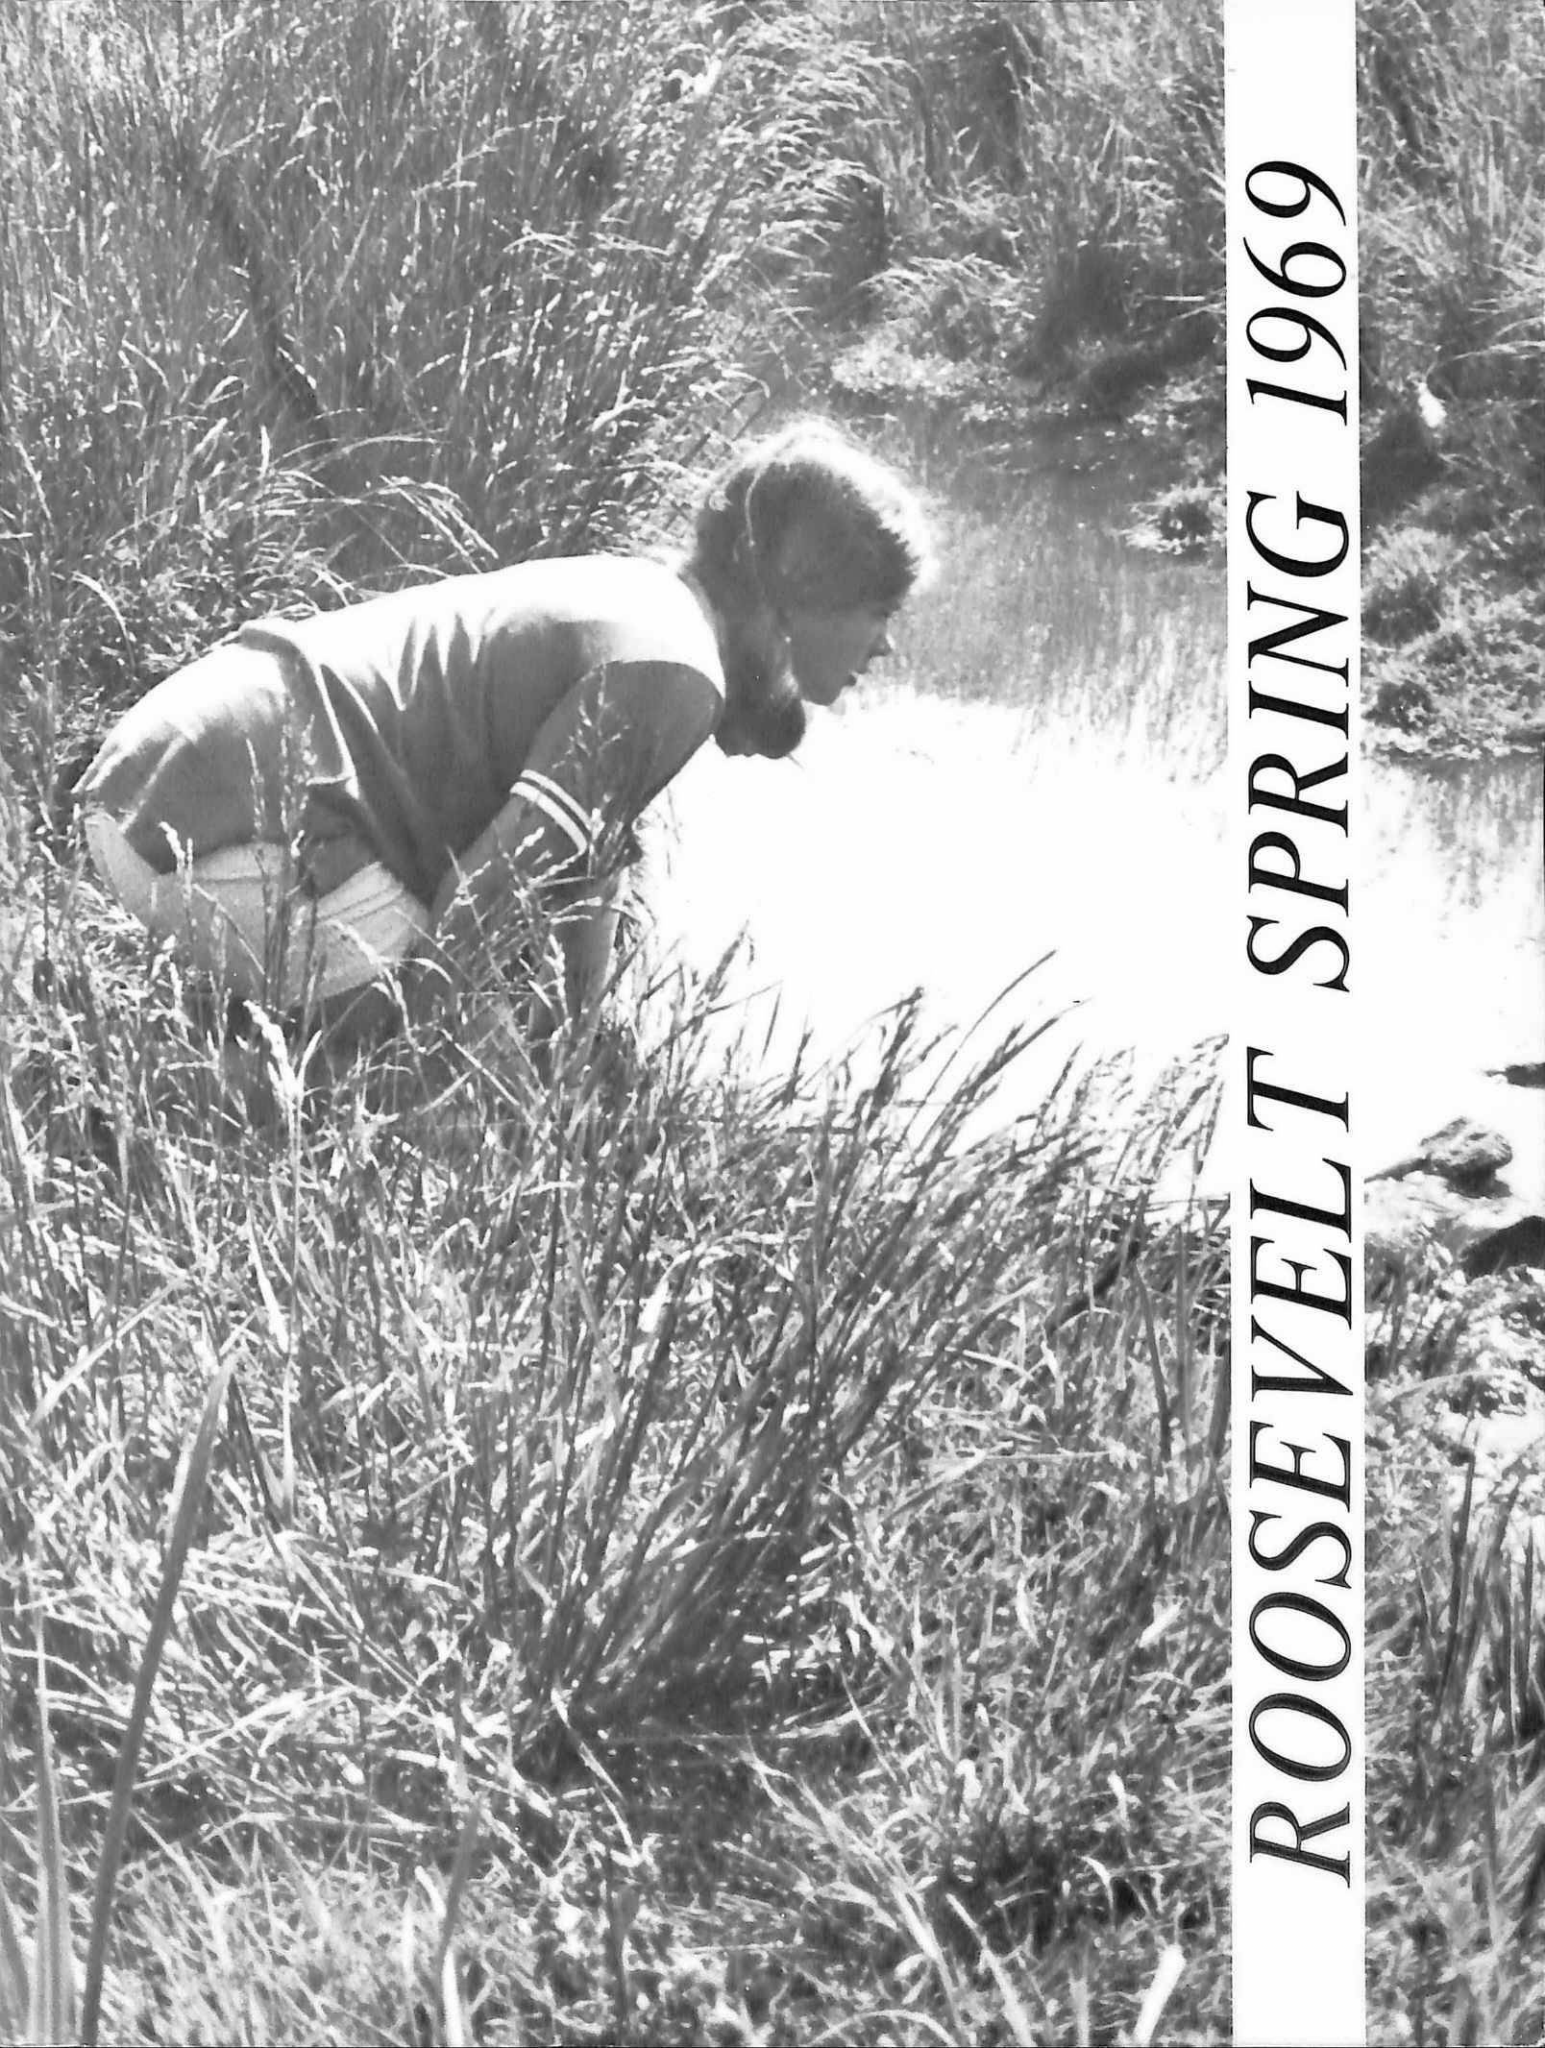

Testing: 1...2...3... This is the beginning of Roosevelt's three-year experiment with a new system. New classes, new schedules, new liberties and new responsibilities. This yearbook reflects the change and is itself one of the changes.

We called this edition METAMORPHOSIS because metamorphosis means change and that's the best word to describe this year. We hope the title won't be used again since we think a yearbook title should try to sum up an entire school year in a single word.

METAMORPHOSIS has more pictures of you. Even though it may be only your left hand or the back of your head. For example, the picture below, which was taken during second quarter registration, shows 79 people (including a number of isolated heads, left hands, and backs) who probably didn't know their picture was being taken and still may not know that they are a part of this page. Why not find a friend or acquaintance in this picture and tell him you saw his picture on page two? Incidentally, where were YOU when this picture was taken?

Mr. Mullaley's class soaks up sun along with history

Spring and Sun

Students from Mr. Neill's science class determine the size of the earth by measuring shadows.

Mr. Hammer's students survey the Amazon

"Down by the water's edge, algae waved invitingly... a lonely brown snail drifted along on his back... a dragon fly stopped momentarily to stare at his reflection... soon the sediment of the bottom swallowed up the contents of the still water like a blanket of fog on a lonely valley."

Poet's Eye Field Trip

Mr. Podpeskar's classes (above and far left) made a stream study for ecology.

Mr. Linder's class practices outdoor living before camping out at Clark Creek (left).

ROOSEVELT WINTER 1970

All Around

Mr. Ferguson demonstrates the Mukkinese war stance.

Car hits Tank! (Tank Richards, that is)

Mr. Roby gently encourages another student to work harder.

Mr. Smith seems to have devised a fool-proof plan to quiet a talkative student.

the School

Officer Jack Barrager, EPD, talks informally to students every Friday afternoon.

"Now look here. Are you going to check this book out to me or not?"

Winter--the Season of Doughnut Sales

When the student council, after a long inward look, abolished itself, student body funds were frozen since no one could authorize their use. From abolishment of the old, to the eventual selection of the new (Proposal D), doughnut sales supported all student activities. From newspaper staff to ski club, everyone sold the tasty O's. Even the referees for the first home basketball games were paid with doughnut dollars.

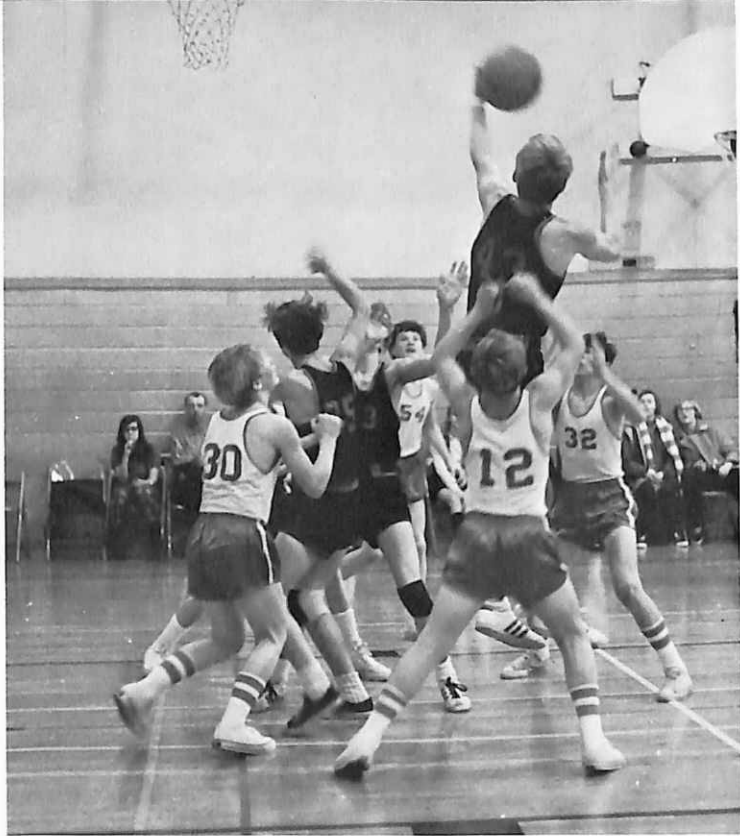

Just two of the many who exercise during the noon hour in the boys' and girls' gyms.

Winter Sports

In addition to the standard junior high classes, students at Roosevelt take such classes as the following: Black Studies, Community Service, Elizabethan England, Minority Groups in America, The Pacific Northwest, The Last West, The Soviet Union, Literature of the North, Shakespeare, Hand Crochet and Knit, Criminology, Music Theater Workshop, Madrigal Singers, Pacific Northwest Indians, Bow and Arrow Making, Creative Stitchery, Oceanography, and Story Telling.
