

A Planned New District Office

The Hopkins County School District currently operates out of the former Madisonville High School, built in 1922. This 100-year-old facility will require significant renovations and updates to remain effective in servicing Hopkins County Schools.

The amended District Facilities Plan accounts for a new Central Office that alleviates the repair and maintenance costs of the current facility while providing several benefits to the District's future.

- Cost Savings
- Energy Efficiencies
- Technology Enhancements
- Sustainable into the Future

OVERALL COST SAVINGS

The relocation of the District's Central Office will result in cost savings by eliminating the current renovation, repair and maintenance expenses. A new facility will also reduce the energy and utility costs to maintain the Central Office. These savings can be re-invested in the District, benefiting the students.

ENERGY EFFICIENCIES

A new facility would drastically decrease the overall energy costs of the Central Office while providing sustainable energy efficiencies.

TECHNOLOGY UPGRADES

A new facility will have the latest technology enhancements, allowing the Central Office to meet the emerging tech needs of the District.

NO TAX INCREASE

The plan, even with a new Central Office, will not create an educational tax increase.

No increase in taxes
