North Cache High School Class of '50

...50 years later

MY CARD

THE CLASS OF 1950
NORTH CACHE HIGH SCHOOL
RICHMOND, UTAH

Reunion on its 50th Anniversary
Friday & Saturday, June 23-24, 2000

UTAH STATE UNIVERSITY

North Cache High School is our Polaris, a fixed constellation that has guided us through critical learning and testing and on through the years.

Demolition of the building in July 1999 did not detract from the spirit of North Cache and its classmates. The spirit of North Cache is etched in the collective experiences and memories of its students and teachers, its cooks and custodians, its principal and its bus drivers.

The spirit of North Cache is once again refreshed in the memories of each member of the Class of '50 as we meet and renew acquaintances; swap favorite stories; remember tricks we played on each other and our teachers; recount sports activities with wins and losses; tell about our favorite assemblies, school plays, club activities, or debate tournament; remember those of our classmates who have 'graduated' and gone on; and sung once again our high school songs.

After reviewing your letters, short histories, and the photos you submitted I am reminded of striking similarities with one of my favorite cartoon strips - PEANUTS, who incidentally also celebrates a 50-year milestone. In peanuts, as in our own class, the characters genuinely care for each other despite occasional bickering, failures and put-downs.

Bungling ball-players, clueless students, and unreturned love as portrayed by Schulz in his cartoon characters, reminds us of lost loves and missed footballs in our own daily lives. Besides Charlie Brown's woes (which include a kite-eating tree), Lucy has a crush on the indifferent and self-absorbed Schroeder, Snoopy's brother Spike wanders alone in the desert, and despite Marcie's help, Peppermint Patty would celebrate if she got a D in school. Lucy's psychiatry stand, Linus' security blanket, and Snoopy's heroic encounters with the Red Baron, express feelings of anguish, uncertainty, inspiration and joy we all face sometime in our lives.

I believe Charlie Brown especially appeals to those who feel we are not quite good enough - and recognizes that even the most beautiful girls in class and the basketball heroes have the same sense of inadequacy as our classmate with zits who can't get beyond a C in English. Good Grief - I do hope you enjoy the PEANUTS theme!

It has been my great privilege and pleasure to work with wonderful classmates on various committees who have given unselfishly of their time and talents to arrange for this reunion.

Sincerely,

Thad A. Carlson

*Here's three cheers for North Cache,

Northcachians thrill with pride,
Whene're they hear your name!*

*Maroon and white! Which stands for might!
And to the band — best in the land.
Rah! Rah! To our team who'll Fight! Fight! Fight!*

*Long will we love thee,
Here's to a toast,
And may your praises
Ring from coast to coast.
Boosting, yes, boosting,
We'll never stop.
And we'll keep North Cache
Right at the top. Yea, Rah!*

CLASSMATES SONG

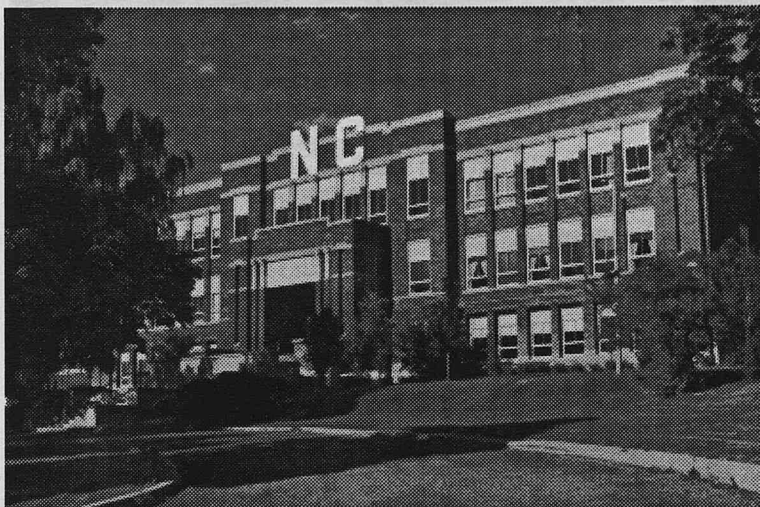

*Classmates stand together, loyal to our school.
Fair or stormy weather, we won't give up,
We'll strive to reach our goal.
Friends and pals forever, it's a long, long way.
All through life we'll do our best
To match our skills against the rest.
Loyal to our school.*

*We're all here together ready now to fight.
Hoping that we never break the bonds
That hold us here tonight.
High school days are over — memories of the past.
North Cache High, we love you so
We'll sing your praise where'er we go.
Loyal to our school.*

HISTORY OF NORTH CACHE SCHOOL BUILDING

Written by G. Richard Bagley, edited by Dell Allen

In the early 1900's public elementary schools in Cache Valley were conveniently located every three miles apart and administered by their local school board. Smaller schools, offering grades 1-8 often had combined classes in which older students would tutor the younger ones, and the younger ones could advance as rapidly as their interest and ability would permit. In 1905 three Cache County schools located at Hyrum, Richmond, and Smithfield offered grades 10-12. Two other schools, located at Wellsville and Lewiston, offered ninth grade work. These were known as high schools since they offered course work beyond the eighth grade level.

School, as the new North Cache High School, enrolling pupils from Hyde Park on the south to Cornish on the North. As plans for a new building continued, Smithfield residents prepared a large map of the area showing that all roads led to Smithfield and that the new High School should be located there, and even offered property north of town as the location for the new building.

The school board voted by three-to-two in March 1915 for a bond election of $140,000 to construct the two new high schools. The vote was not only for bond approval, but also location. The bond issue was defeated by a vote to 1149 to 643. Of the 23 voting districts, only Avon, Cove, Hyrum, Richmond, and Stepenson (Lewiston) favored the bond.

Very little happened regarding the North Cache building until a state-wide high school rating, published by the state in 1919 showed South Cache High School, completed in 1916, as a first-class school, based on (1) grounds, buildings, and equipment, (2) education programs of the school, and (3) administration. The second-class rating of North Cache spurred the movement for a new building.

Fred W. Hodgson was appointed architect to draw up plans and supervise erection in of the new high school in Richmond, to be constructed for less than $200,000 if at all possible. Pencil sketches of the building were presented to the board at their meeting in January 1920, where they proposed a bond of $400,000 for nineteen school projects, knowing that the more schools that would be improved or added, the more support they were apt to receive for issuing the bond. Their scheme worked and when the votes were counted after the February election the bond was approved by two-to-one.

Even though the bond election had passed a committee of school patrons from eight northern communities approached the board in April and asked for reconsideration of the location. Another committee of school patrons requested that the action of putting North Cache at Richmond as final. A change of location was denied by unanimous vote with one abstention. The city of Richmond agreed to give the school sufficient land on which to erect the new high school. A ten acre lot south of Richmond was obtained. The citizens of Richmond also offered to donate much of the construction labor for the new school. Foundation, brick, steel, sand-gravel, grading, plumbing-heating, wiring, clock system, and hardware costs amounted to $105,587. Low bid for the general contractor was received from Carpenter Construction Company of $114,865. Adding the architect's commission of $13,350 and building inspector fee of $923 brought the total to $234,725.

Construction started immediately and progressed satisfactorily through 1920-21. In the fall of 1921 the school was finished and ready to accept students, which consisted of 57 freshmen, 96 sophomores, 96 juniors and 42 seniors. After completion of the building in 1921, enrollment increases and the need to maintain a modern school facility prompted several additions and changes to the original structure. A new shop building replaced the old wooden structure in 1927. In 1935 with financial aid of the government, the basement and two stories containing five rooms above the basement was constructed and annexed to the east side of the building between the school and the shop.

Property north of the school was purchased from Ray Stoddard in 1937 to complete a football field and track. Construction of the bleachers began in 1938 with Amos Bair supervising the project with Principal Stoddard as coordinator. The entire cost of the field and bleachers was $15,000.. A formal opening ceremony of the ball field was held Oct. 6, 1939. Frequent requests to the board for a girl's gym were followed by numerous promises but it never materialized.

After forty-three years as a high school building, things changed in 1964, the year the new consolidated Sky View High School was opened to all county high school students outside of Logan City. It had taken eight years of studies, meetings, debates, elections, and high emotions to achieve this consolidation. North Cache became a Junior High School, replacing the one in Smithfield. The Bulldog Mascot remained by the steps to the auditorium, and Maroon and White were still the School colors. Four faculty members remained at North Cache rather than moving to Sky View, and Richard Bagley became the first Principal of the new Junior High.

In the past ten years, the school board has made a concerted effort to replace all older school buildings throughout the district. With North Cache and South Cache being the two oldest buildings, both having been used for more than seventy-five years, a bond election in 1997 gave the board the money needed to make major building changes throughout the district, including replacing the two old high school buildings. The last class to attend the school will graduate in June 1999 after which the building will be demolished. This brings to a conclusion a brief history of this grand old building

MEMORIES

Dell Allen says he remembers the excitement of going to State at Weber with the NC Debate team.

Clifford Andreassen remembers Martin Pond pouring rotten-egg gas over the balcony to break up a sit-in on the steps.

Del Bullen fondly remembers traveling assemblies & operettas.

Thad Carlson says he vividly remembers presenting our "NC class gift" AND the Unpaid Balance to Principal Stoddard.

Eleanor Clow Jordan remembers being a stranger but being made welcome in her junior and senior years at NC.

BonAdell Comish Skidmore remembers having to slap Thad Carlson in one of the plays and was afraid I would really hurt him.

Marlene Crossley McVey remembers getting a "B" in Geometry after telling Mr. Hurren so many times "I can't do it" -

Peggy Daines remembers with embarrassment when her parents were called because she was caught sluffing Home Economics to watch the football team practice.

Lee Downs fondly remembers being in F.F.A. and now watching his grandchildren being involved in F.F.A. today.

Lois Erickson Rigby says: "I couldn't wait to get to North Cache on the bus each day. Life was simple, friends and school the greatest, and everyone was young".

Harold N. Falslev remembers the Benson boys, waiting for the bus, knocked Jay Whitman's hat off with a snowball, so he retaliated with a bucket of water from the Farm Mechanics Bldg.-

Conrad Facer says: "My funniest and fondest memories have been of you - classmates through the years.

Roy D. Sanders recalls: "When a dance was held - I hid"; "Now I am a member of square and ballroom dance clubs."

Kay Feltman's wife says she remembers Kay telling how envious classmates were of his Harley Davidson motorcycle.

Grace Hendricks Irby remembers as a member of the band, marching endless miles in the summer wearing hot uniforms; and says: "Happily for me I played the piccolo!"

Arland D. Hillyard recalls: "My knowledge, in Heber Whittings class, of the true path of a ham & cheese sandwich through the body gave me a seat on the bench during the football games and allowed me to sit on the steps leading to the balcony of the auditorium, where we wore white corduroys with pencil marks all over the legs, hearts with letter and an arrow shooting through."

Irene Johnson Butterfield remembers: "School was fun for me. I had a good time every day and never sluffed because I was afraid I would miss something."

Norman G. Kelsey remembers having prayer at school without being accused of mixing church and state.

Doral D. Perkes remembers Dennis Allen was showing how fast he could change directions back & forth in their new car with an automatic transmission. Left a little rubber too. Said: "I hope the transmission lasted."

Joyce Peterson Richmond remembers practicing with other cheerleading on her front lawn, when a bunch of guys brought lots of watermelon back from Brigham City; they ate the insides and left the rest and was my dad upset!

James Pond remembers when a dozen of us, including cheer leaders, skipped school and drove to Jordan High School to a football game. One of group [Ves Karren] was a good sport and rode in trunk of the car because it was so crowded.

Clark L. Puffer recalls going with LaVar Rasmussen, Max Hillyard, Robert Simpson, and Wendell Weeks in LaVar or Max's car, to Hyrum dances; or on the "Idaho trip" from Preston and around to Bear Lake and then home and said: "They always seemed to arrange such trips on the night prior to a track meet that Max and I would participate in the next day".

Mona J. Reese Bunting remembers waiting for the Benson bus (one of the last to leave) - and seeing a large number of football players jump into a car; and as they continued to pile in, we saw the nicely rounded tires go down flat as pancakes; don't know what happened next.

Gerald T. Riggs remembers when Thad sang: "That Lucky Ole Sun" in black face.

Andy Robinson remembers his favorite teacher, Mr. Van Orden, falling asleep at his desk after giving out assignments.

Lois Sleight Lang said: "Riding across the street on my bike, I got hit by a car and had my shoulder broken; not funny then, but good to tell the grandkids."

Mickie Smith Stott remembers a cigar in Mr. Moores Seminary; and Mr. Anderson hanging out the Band window.

Wendell Weeks remembers when students would casually sneak behind the drapes in the geography class on the 2nd floor, climb out the window, shinny down, and come back into the class with some fanfare. The teacher was completely confused after seeing this same student enter the room several times but never leave.

Marlene Telford (Lundahl) says: "I enjoyed school plays, art awards; and carried the name "Tillie" until married and with children."

Jeaneen Thain Duffey still remembers Heber Whiting excellent advice: "It isn't the size of the dog in the fight that counts, what's important is the size of the fight in the dog" -

Dale Valentine recalls: "I had to hitch-hike from Brigham City to attend North Cache my senior year. If I was lucky I caught a ride from Logan with Arlie Haws. The winter of '49-'50 was cold!"

This Is How Angels Are Made.

Charlie Brown Goes To Heaven

“Show me that river
Take me across
Wash all my troubles away,
Like that lucky old sun,
Give me nothin’ to do
But, roll around Heaven all day!”
Frankie Laine
