SCHOOL BOARD'S hair policy pleases students

Members of the Cache County School Board met monthly to discuss problems and innovations to be made in the district. They approved new dress standards which allowed mustaches and longer hair for boys. A dressing room for athletics added to the east side of the main building meant three boys no longer had to share a locker. A larger boiler installed to improve the heating system could be alternated with the present boiler or used to generate more heat by running both. The School Board continually evaluated the problems of school curriculum and a growing school population.

Right: Superintendent C. Bryce Draper often uses his dictating machine to save time on school business. Below: Cache County School Board members Dean Haslem, Member; Clifford J. Stauffer, Member; Keith D. Hansen, Director of Business Administration; C. Bryce Draper, Superintendent; Mark B. Lindley, President; Doris W. Budge, Member; and Willis S. Hall, Member; meet regularly to discuss plans and problems.

PRINCIPAL THURSTON works closely with School Board for students', teachers' benefit

Changing the age old philosophy of "I hate school!" was Principal Stephen Thurston's goal. He hoped to make school an enjoyable place for students to develop socially as well as mentally.

To accomplish this goal, the students had to help by getting involved in their class and the activities provided.

Mr. Thurston counseled the sophomores to take part in school and to join the extra-curricular activities. Mr. Thurston spent many hours conversing with parents and students. He stressed that before students could enjoy school they should become active in school life.

Aside from school, Mr. Thurston served as mayor of Hyde Park working on the water supply problem for the city.

SCHOOL PERSONNEL assists students in planning activities

Vice-principal Leon West, senior advisor, assisted in making plans for senior graduation. His other duties included supervising the parking lot, scheduling the use of audio-visual equipment, and planning Parent-Teacher Conference.

Helping juniors plan the Junior Prom, advising the Executive Council as they coordinated student activities, and working with Cheer and Song Leaders kept Mr. John Hansen busy as vice-principal.

Sophomores went to Mrs. Cleo Smith, counselor, with registration, family, and friend problems. Her testing programs pointed out their strong and weak areas.

Vocational counseling for juniors was handled by Mr. Keith Taggart. Students were made aware of post high school educational opportunities.

New senior counselor, Mr. Jay Low came from Sugar City High School and Junior High where he taught sociology and psychology.

Performing duties often unnoticed, but necessary, were Mrs. Barbara Blair, book-keeper; Mrs. Olene Ransom, secretary to Mr. Thurston; Mrs. Sharon Butters, attendance secretary; and Juness Christensen, secretary in charge of lunch tickets.

FACULTY remembers special occasions to make school hours enjoyable for students

Staying late after school to help a student understand the day's lesson, letting another make up a missed test, preparing the next day's lesson plan or putting up a new bulletin board were regular tasks for the faculty. Some teachers advised clubs, classes or organizations while others helped prepare students for performing outside the school in regional sports, community concerts, debate meets and school plays.

Teachers were often found in the halls helping students with problems or just engaging in friendly conversation. The challenges posed by the teachers showed many students that they really wanted to help them become better individuals.

CUSTODIANS' brooms constantly patrol halls

By stripping and waxing the halls during Christmas holidays while students enjoyed vacation, the custodians kept Sky View immaculate. Other duties included leveling the football field and clipping the lawn.

Listening to complaints or compliments, the cooks tried to satisfy students and faculty. Three lines ran daily in an effort to please all tastes. The snack bar line had hamburgers and fries while two other lines allowed a choice of main dishes.

Putting up with the noisy chatter of students, the bus drivers brought them to school each day, bussed them to games and provided transportation for field trips.

ACADEMICS

LANGUAGE ARTS furnishes new classes, gives students opportunity to select courses

Juniors and Seniors chose for the first time the areas in English they preferred to study. Classes were taught on a semester basis so students could study more than one course of English. Avid readers chose fiction and background reading, while would-be writers experimented with creative writing or composition. Communication skills and additional speech classes meant more students learned the fundamentals of good public speaking. For the first time school play participants earned a credit and rehearsed for an hour when they took the drama production class.

Problems arose this year as the media coordinators tried to find space for the increasing number of books in the Media Center. By the end of the year 1,500 books were shelved on the floor.

More and more students who missed assignments used the Media Center to "catch up." Movies could be viewed on a special preview machine in Room C. Media Center personnel cheerfully provided recordings and film strips for make-up work or preview for use in class reports. Students taking the Library Science class received on-the-job training and found out whether they enjoyed library work as an occupation.

Simulator helpful to DRIVER ED classes

Embarrassment and a longer wait for the much coveted license were in store for the Driver Education student who flunked the state driving test. Students prepared for the exam by a series of pre-driving tests. Several visits out in the school-furnished station wagon, Super Bee or Custom Cornet gave practical experience geared for passing the drivers test. In visits to the simulator a student could run a red light, speed, over drive his lights, hit another car; all without shaking up an instructor beside him.

FINE ARTS give students chances to travel through Western States, Canada displaying talents

Singing on television's Midday show in Salt Lake became a tradition as the choir was televised for the sixth time. They also caroled around the Singing Christmas Tree in the Cottonwood Mall and entertained children in the Primary Children's Hospital. The performing girls' glee sang often within the valley.

For the first time the Marching Band performed the half time for a game away from home at Pocatello in the famous Mini-dome. Utah State Fair was a highlight for the Marching Band as they participated in an outdoor concert in the afternoon and later received a complimentary letter from the fair board for their performance. An invitation to the Calgary Stampede in July was something for the band to look forward to. The Studio Band played on television for a 4-H fashion show in the fall and enlivened many pep assemblies and games. Playing for the musical was the Orchestra's main project.

Art students painted from models that were unique. Antiques - sewing machines, old saddles, skulls and wheels - tested students' perception and creative ability as they transferred their impressions to the canvas.

SOCIAL SCIENCE invites visitors

"Biogeopolistory" coins a new word to explain what went on in Social Science. Sociology, American Problems, World Cultures, American History, Economics, Student Government, World History and Political Science were linked to each other because man was the center of each study. Teachers tried to relate these classes to situations in life. Putting the hardbound books away and switching to paperbacks or whatever the teacher preferred to use was tried. Many speakers were brought in including: Gunn McKay, congressman; Dan Jones, pollster for NBC TV; and Jon Tolson, narcotics agent. Games to simulate actions of the United Nations and Young Americans were tried.

P.E. individual sports uses Universal Gym

Individual Sports, a semester class tried for the first time this year on a first-come-first-serve basis, enrolled approximately 12 boys. They concentrated on sports such as ping pong, muscle development and work-outs on the Universal Gym, chess, tennis and golf on an individual basis. General evaluation of the class was, "It's the best P. E. class I've ever had."

Modern Dance classes learned to express their feelings and emotions in the form of dance movements. They made up dance routines to instrumental records and everyday words. The girls' and boys' P.E. classes helped build better relations with others in their class as they competed on a team basis. Some sports involved in these classes were football, baseball, bowling, swimming, trampoline and basketball.

MATH offers new Business Math to students

1) "Write the nuclear reaction, in the abbreviated form, for the emission of an α particle by the ionium nucleus thorium-230. See Appendix II." Pencils scratched, heads bowed, erasers wore down as the students worked out the problem and others just as challenging for the eight Math teachers. A new semester class was offered this year which boasted 62 students, Business Math. The most preferred class was Algebra I with Algebra III least popular.

BOTANY class takes field trip to southern Idaho lab

Hydroponic tomato plants caught the Botany students' interest after a trip to a hydroponic laboratory. Growing tomatoes in gravel, or hydroponically, is a new method recently discovered. The Department also visited the Atomic Energy Division located at Arco, Idaho. The Botany classes studied the effects that poison plants have on the animal life in this area when they visited the Poison Plant Laboratory. Physiology students studied the structure of the human body, its bones and organs, their locations and functions. During a chapter on ecology, students in Mr. Summers' Biology classes went on a field trip to a park in Smithfield. There they collected samples of tree's bark, soil, and insects, and returned to school to study and analyze them. Dissecting worms, clams, crayfish and frogs also broke the routine Biology classes for the students.

BUSINESS classes give students practical training

"One student at a time to a machine!" was the constant gripe heard coming from the Business Machines classes. Along with the clicking of typewriters, adding machines and data processing equipment, students found the proper training and experience necessary for a good job. Realistic tax forms helped teach the students the procedure of filing for income tax. The Distributive Education Club of America gave participating students on-the-job training at such jobs as clerks, waitresses, cooks, foremen and secretaries. The students were employed at various places such as Sambo's, Penneys, Sears, Grand Central, Taco Time, Clint's Nursery, Cantwells, Fred's Flowers and Watkin's Printing. Data Processing played a double role, not only as a training class for the students, but also as a great time saver for some teachers who used it to figure up grades quickly.

HOME EC arranges baking, shopping days

Candy, Scandinavian cooking and freshly baked pastry odors filtered through the Home Ec Department. Food Services experimented with different recipes to find the perfect food for every occasion. Students spent one day a week baking pies.

Girls learned and practiced basic arts for becoming homemakers. Shopping days provided experience in understanding product values and money management.

Beauticians and special speakers gave helpful suggestions for self-improvement during clothing classes. Before beginning the actual sewing, the girls studied fabric types, colors and pattern styles to find perfect combinations for their outfits.

SPECIAL ED adds arts and crafts to program

Nine of Sky View's Senior students participated in a work-study program. Some received on-the-job experience in mechanics, welding or upholstery. Others worked as dental assistants, stock clerks or service station operators. The goal of the Special Education program was to meet the needs of the exceptional student and to help him make his way into society. Arts and crafts were a new addition to the department. Students were encouraged to express themselves through creativity.

VOCATIONAL AG teaches farming skills

In a two-hour block class Vocational Agricultural students learned to weld truck beds, horse walkers and implement trailers. Animal Science taught the fitting and showing of animals. Participants then took 32 dairy animals to the state fair, bringing home ribbons and honors. Boys also found the butter fat content in their cow's milk when they brought it in for testing. Plant and Soil Science allowed students to check minerals and fertilizers they needed to add to their soil. Boys taking this class had to have an animal or crop project.

CONSTRUCTION class builds modern home

Amateur carpenters spent $12,000 and two hours a day for nine months building a professional frame house. Fully carpeted and containing all new kitchen appliances, it met all standards required by the Utah Housing Division. During their two-hour block class, boys in Automotives brought their own cars to school and worked on them. Photography students studied the techniques of taking a good picture while the Woods and Crafts class kept busy making wallets, belts, ceramics and stools. The Electronics classes received some on-the-job training as they repaired broken school equipment.

Night pep rally rained out for HOMECOMING

Cold, drizzly weather made a night rally impossible. For the first time in Sky View's history, the Homecoming Parade had to be postponed until Friday morning during school because of the downpour.

Standing in wet, soggy weather, students formed two lines from the football dressing rooms to the stadium to cheer the football team on. The first snow of the year did not hamper the enthusiasm and spirit for the Homecoming game as football players struggled in mud and slush. Sliding as they tried to penetrate Bonneville lines, Sky View lost by a punt.

Warm and dry in the foil-lined walls of the Student Center, students celebrated at the Homecoming Dance. Scott Simmons, two year alumnus of Sky View, sang the theme song, "The Times, They Are A-Changin'."

SNOW FROLIC sets wintry mood for dance

Sophomores tried their hand at something new to them, planning and organizing a high school dance. The theme of their December dance, Snow Frolic, was set in an atmosphere of snow flakes and Christmas trees lighted by a sparkling chandelier. White plastic draped cloud-like from the ceiling with simulated snow flakes falling from it. Lights reflected from the chandelier gave the cafeteria the effect of a winter wonderland. Students danced to Cimmaron and ate Christmas cookies and punch for refreshments.

BARNSTOMP auctions young lamb for 'bargain'

Overalls, hay, the hitchin' post, a red and white checkered ceiling with matching tablecloths, all combined to make a hillbilly barnstomp. An auction, held as part of the floor show, auctioned a lamb to Clayne Liechty for the "low" price of $17.50. Kirk Strawser, Ellen Bischoff, Kaye Lynn Larson and Scott Kerr sang the theme song, "Country Road." Marryin' Summers and his shotgun propelled many couples to get "hitched" at the hitchin' post. Chicken markers were the wedding rings. FHA and FFA decorators achieved a checkerboard ceiling by interweaving red and white plastic strips. Dancers relaxed at tables covered by matching tablecloths where spudnuts and cider were served. A pig at the door greeted the hungry intruders and pipe stem cleaner cows joined the couples at the tables. Any kind of dress was acceptable—except bare feet. A rock dance band, Oakersuns, from Ogden played easy rock. Hay placed around the cafeteria served as the resting places for dancers.

SENIOR PROM theme was 'Arabian Nights'

Seniors and guests danced in an Arabian Nights' atmosphere at the Senior Prom. Tin foil hung on strings from the windows represented beaded doorways, and a Taj Mahal backgrounded the blue and purple decorations. The royalty entered from a tent in the desert for their intermission introduction. Dressed as a snake charmer, Phyllis Watkins entertained with a belly dance and excerpt from Kahil Gibran's, The Prophet. Macaroons, stuffed dates, olives and grape juice simulated Arabian food. Advisors Greer Baird, Myron Benson, Sherman Lindhardt and Brian Chambers helped.

JUNIOR PROM only formal dance

Girls looked forward all year to Sky View's only formal dance while the boys waited more for that first tux. The entranceway, a dark tunnel with an artificial grass path, featured fluorescent trees and flowers and a running fountain, creating a glowing spring garden. Red carpeted stairs led the couples on to the floor for dancing to Cal Jacobson's Band. Decorations of red and white lined the walls and ceiling. Prom queen, Kandace Pond, sat on a red velvet throne while her attendants surrounded her under a red and white canopy.

Snow Carnival, Hello Dance termed success

Two stag dances sponsored by the Executive Council were noted as "great successes" by those students who attended the dances. The Hello Dance, held at the beginning of the school year, helped everyone become acquainted. Since the dance was casual, no royalty was chosen.

After the Bonneville basketball game, students danced at the Snow Carnival Dance in the cafeteria. Neither decorations nor refreshments were at either dance. Rock bands for both dances, "Fresh Air" for the Hello Dance and "Cimeron" for the Snow Carnival, played to enthusiastic students. The Exec Council termed these dances as having the biggest turn-outs of the year.

Assembly.

S.V. welcomes Sophomores in Initiation ASSEMBLY

Sky View welcomed the sophomores to school with the Initiation Assembly. Held on the football field, the assembly began with the Sophomore boys pulling the Executive Council to the field in wagons. From there a kissing bench was established. If the girls didn't comply with the boys' wishes, they received a dunk in the pool. The Homecoming Assembly invited back alumni of several years. Presented to the studentbody were dance routines, scenes from last year's musical and songs. A USU student finishing his master's in Photography presented an assembly using two projectors to show slides of local scenery with a musical background. Don Lind, a United States astronaut, spoke to the studentbody about the space flights and the space programs.

Cheerleaders sponsor PEP ASSEMBLIES to add enthusiasm to school's sports programs

School spirit really went wild this year. Shouts and screams of "Go, Fight, Win" echoed throughout the building. Lively cheer and song leaders came up with new chants and cheers for each pep assembly. Original skits by the cheer and song leaders boosted school spirit. The biggest pep assembly of the year preceded the Logan - Sky View game. This year the Vistans did a pep assembly, adding their precision and sparkle to the skits. As special treat Kenny Thompson, an alumni basketball player, gave the school a pep talk, and cheer and song leaders sold blue and white derbies to the student-body. The annual "toasting the teddy" or "burning the Logan Grizzly" brought cheers and whistles from Bobcat fans. The cheerleaders even talked Santa Claus into dropping by on his way to Sears during the Christmas season.

Sky View presents TAMING OF THE SHREW — four full nights of Shakespearean drama

With the complete cast chosen the school year before, cast members had the summer months for learning lines and getting into character. Along with hours of after school and weekend practices, Mrs. Carlson, the director, offered a drama production class where all play members could receive special instruction. So many talented students tried out that most major characters were double-cast to give everybody interested a chance to act. Shakespeare offered a unique challenge to those involved. The cast spent hours trying to feel at home speaking in the poetic verses of the Shakespearean time, while the production crews faced the problem of finding or making costumes and scenery typical of the Elizabethan Period.

TAMING OF THE SHREW—story of dreaded shrew changed to beloved, devoted wife

Lucentio and Tranio arrive in Padua to meet Baptista and his daughters, Katharina and Bianca. Both Gremio and Hortensio love Bianca, but Baptista will not permit his younger daughter to marry until someone marries shrewful Katharina. Lucentio and Hortensio, disguised as tutors, come to woo Bianca. Petruchio, a rich nobleman, comes to visit Hortensio. He is intrigued with the description of Katharina. With permission to marry her secured, his courtship is a battle of wits. He arrives late to his own wedding dressed in tattered clothes. He drags Katharina away, giving her no food or time to sleep, while pretending that nothing is good enough for her. Finally, he conquers her headstrong spirit. Bianca falls in love with Lucentio and Hortensio marries a rich widow. At their weddings, Katharina outshines the other wives in obedience to her husband. The shrew is tamed!

Left: Along with starvation, ruined clothing and frustrating days without sleep, Petruchio uses other methods to demonstrate his love for Katharina and to curb her headstrong humor. Below: With outraged Katharina and determined Petruchio married, a wedding feast and dance are held to celebrate and bring cheer to the new couple.

Effort made sell-out for SOUTH PACIFIC

South Pacific, a Rodgers and Hammerstein's production, played February 22, 23, 24, and 26 to Sky View and Cache Valley audiences. A cast of 70 stayed night after night to perfect each of their roles for the final performances. Mr. Stratford Loosle directed the complete production with Mrs. Greer Baird and Mrs. Jean Roylance as co-directors, Mr. Tom Baird, scenery, Mr. Robert Frost, orchestra director and Mr. Grant Brough, business. Three student directors and over 100 students made the production a success by helping with make-up, lights and sound, advertising, programs and ticket sales. Many of the parts were double cast to give more students a chance to participate; all of the lead parts had double with the casts playing alternate nights.

Prejudice blocked love in SOUTH PACIFIC

World War II sent many young people into strange lands. Lt. Joe Cable and Ensign Nellie Forbush found themselves in such a predicament on a strange South Pacific island, fighting racial prejudice. Nellie Forbush fell in love with Frenchman Emile de Becque, who fled to the island to escape a murder charge. Nellie found it hard to accept Emile's two Polynesian children. Lt. Cable came to the island to try to escalate the war (by spying on the "Japs.") Sgt. Luther Billis and Bloody Mary escorted Lt. Cable to the mysterious Isle of Bali Hai. Bloody Mary introduced her daughter Liat to Lt. Cable who could not deal with his feelings about a 'foreigner'. He and Nellie Forbush found themselves confused by their prejudices.

VARSITY FOOTBALL holds opposing touchdowns to total score of 28 points for season

Coach Lindley termed this year's defensive team as the best for keeping the opposition's points to a minimum, holding half of the teams scoreless. Only three of the eight teams penetrated the defensive line to cross the goal line for a total of twenty-eight points. The Bonneville Lakers scored their winning points by a punt. The win over Box Elder was the greatest Bobcat victory ever, with a 56-0 score. Though lacking in size and experience, the Varsity squad still played a competitive game. Sky View took second place in the division. A loss to Logan by three unfortunate fumbles on the five yard line cost Sky View its berth in the state playoffs. All-division players named were Randy Oldroyd, Scott Kerr, Scott Hendry, Kent Tingey, running backs; Greg Lindley, Mel Maughan and Mike Lamb, ends; Robert Olson, tackle; O'Dell Speth, center; Blaine Osmond, middle guard; Mark Flammer, quarterback; and Kirk Strawser, line backer and Defensive Player of the Year.

JUNIOR VARSITY wins seven of eight games

Many of the Junior Varsity saw not only JV action, but also Varsity, gaining some of the precious experience needed to play Varsity football. The Bobkittens lost only one of their eight games to the Roy Royals. Outstanding Bobkittens were Don Miller, Marv Pehrson, Richard Ballam, Richard Peterson and Bruce Allen. Coaches Vilarr Ransom and Merlin Maughan worked with the Junior Varsity team.

JUNIOR VARSITY wins seven of eight games

Many of the Junior Varsity boys and girls are new to the sport, but they have shown a great deal of ability and determination in the few games they have played. The following are the results of the first games of the season. Outstanding athletes were: Don Jones, Gary Pritchard, Robert Lee and Michael Peterson and Bruce Allen. The following are the names of the boys and girls who were on the Junior Varsity team.

Sky View SWIMMERS make big splash with new records

Slicked down hair, tired arms and legs and daily work-outs proved worthwhile to Sky View swimmers who swam their way to third place in region. Lance Buckley proved to be an outstanding member of the team when he set two new records, swimming the 200 freestyle in 2:18.5 and the 400 freestyle in 4:14.8. In daily work-outs the team members individually practiced the stroke or dive they specialized in. Eager to win, the team often worked harder under their own supervision than when Coach Oliverson supervised the work-out. In state competition in mid-February, Doug Hyer won eleventh place in diving.

VARSITY gains right for State Tournament by thrilling one point victory in Playoffs

Bobcats earned a berth at the State Tournament in Salt Lake City with a one point victory over the Bonneville Lakers at Regional Playoffs. At State Sky View lost to Viewmont, 2nd place winner, in the last five minutes after leading by as much as fifteen and tying the score nine times.

In the second game, Sky View lost to Hillcrest after leading most of the way. Averaging less than 6' Bobcats were too tired to outjump their 6'5" and 6'6" opponents by the fourth quarter. The 8 and 13 record did not really show the Bobcats' close games, often lost by 1 or 2 points.

With only one loss JV record almost perfect

With an excellent record of 19-1 the Junior Varsity had a headstart toward becoming next year's region champs. For the first time in several years, the team consisted only of juniors. Coach Jessop platooned his squad, allowing almost every player to score in double figures in at least one game. Bruce Allen led the team with a high 29 points before leaving with Gary Webb to join the Varsity team. The team reached 110 points for the top score of the season. With a small team averaging only 5'10", determination made up for the lack of height. The JV's keys to success were its fast breaks and good board work.

SOPHOMORES' high record shows talents

Determined to form a great ball club, sixteen members of the sophomore basketball team arrived from North Cache and South Cache ready to play high school ball. Coach Merlin Maughan taught this group the basic offensive and defensive patterns that Coach Christensen used for the Varsity team. They worked nights after school to perfect these plays. The sophomores reached unusual scoring as they finished the year with high scores of 109 and 92. Kim Hall scored 38 points in just one game, showing high potential for next year. They played away when the Varsity played home and home when the Varsity played away, winning nine games.

Two Sky View High Varsity WRESTLERS recognized at state competition in February

Two of Sky View's varsity wrestlers packed up their Bobcat pride and went to state to show how it's done at Sky View. Both Blaine Osmond and O'Dell Speth returned home triumphant after three days of competing against other Utah high schools.

Senior boys are not the only ones on the varsity team, sophomores and juniors can gain recognition on the varsity team if they defeat a varsity member in a match.

For the first time in six years Sky View stepped aside and shared first place in region with Bear River. Sky View settled for second place. Coaches Vilarr Ransom and Gordon Churchill worked wrestlers.

Soph. WRESTLERS build muscles, stamina

Sophomore wrestlers discovered the proud feeling of wearing the traditional white shirt with the blue message "Sky View Wrestler."

Members also found each day ending with two grueling hours of exercises and work-outs that built up endurance to carry them through match after match.

Rules and regulations set up by Coach Ransom seemed to be accepted by both experienced and beginning wrestlers. Nightly curfews, an earlier bed time and abstinence from tobacco and liquor helped wrestlers put on a better show.

Starting before season, TRACK and FIELD strive to perfect skills to take first in region

Starting with their first track meet against Bear River on the 30th of March, the track team displayed the results of long hours of training after school to perfect themselves. Many sophomores turned out to match their skills with each other and competing teams. Several boys showed real determination and desire to excel when they started working out long before the season had even begun. Coach Jessop received a great performance from these boys and also from those who returned from a successful season last year. Returning top performers were Kent Tingey on 880 and high jump, Dave Saunders and Scott Kerr running 440, Carl Murray on 880, Randy Oldroyd on low hurdles, and Mont Ringer on the pole vault.

Seniors earn fourteen DEPARTMENT AWARDS

Receiving trophies at the inside awards assembly, fourteen outstanding students gained recognition. Teachers in each department picked two top students; one, the sterling scholar and the other, the departmental award winner. The student's grade point, the number of classes taken in each department over a three year period and his outside activities determined his eligibility for the award. Students receiving these awards had a good chance for college scholarships or job offers.

Administration makes SPECIAL AWARDS

For the first time at Sky View, three senior students received special awards in three areas, Speech, Foreign Languages and Orchestra. Recipients were chosen by the administration for their superior abilities, hard work and dedication.

Three years of active involvement in both community and school affairs were the basis for the selection of the Sterling Scholars. Contestants were judged by a personal portfolio and on their past record of citizenship, leadership abilities and contribution to that department. A personal interview with the judges was also required as the students entered competition. Seven of the twelve Sterling Scholars chosen from Sky View were picked as Regional Finalists. Those chosen as state winners and runner-ups received scholarships and cash awards.

AURORA attends yearbook training workshop

Cris and Lynda along with Advisor, Mrs. Hansen, flew to San Francisco to attend the Western Yearbook Conference and compare yearbook notes with staffs from all of the Western states. Newly appointed junior staff members learned the basics in a USU yearbook conference. Senior editors and photographers spent a week at BYU exchanging ideas with yearbookers from the West and producing a mini yearbook for practice, going right to the press to see the procedures. Photographers carried cameras to games, assemblies or down the halls to capture students in action. Ten editors, five photographers and two advisors struggled together to make an A+ yearbook.

CATONIAN publishes news twice monthly to keep students aware of school happenings

Meeting two deadlines a month, the Catonian told the story of the school bi-monthly. The studentbody hurried to the Catonian boxes to scramble for a paper as teachers patiently tried to ignore the students reading the school paper during their lectures. The Catonian's coverage introduced new students, teachers and cadet teachers to the school. The paper reported current happenings including school elections, assemblies, inter-school competition and athletics. "Letters to the Editor" served as a sounding board for students with complaints or praise. Letters ranged from requests to give more recognition for non-athletic groups and to use fewer raisins at hot lunch to rebuttles telling the cooks to keep raisins on the hot lunch menu.

Variety of Literary entries appear in CATALYST

New this year was the Literary Club. This club published three booklets of original poems, essays and short stories written by the students. The school's literary magazine, "The Catalyst", took its material from those submitted to the Literary Club for publication. The officers selected for this club were Janice Gittins, President; Monte Carlson, Vice-President; and Rita Hurd, Secretary. The representative sent from the Catalyst staff was Leslie Lindstrom.

Unlike other clubs at Sky View, the Girls' and Boys' Associations involved all the students in the school. These organizations presented many worth-while programs to the students. The girls learned karate and self-defense at one meeting while the boys enjoyed USU football films presented by Kent Baer, an alumni football player now playing for Utah State. A basketball game between the faculty and the Lettermen got both the girls and boys yelling. The faculty came out on top in that one. The officers of these associations worked together to make the Homecoming dance and assembly a great success.

Playoffs, theatrical productions, conventions stem from ORGANIZATIONS

After winning three rounds of High School Challenge, the Young Americans made it into the state playoffs along with two other Utah high schools. Twenty-five members competed for the chance to represent Sky View. Mrs. White was nicknamed A.P. (Able Person) because of all the time and effort she devoted.

Representing South Viet Nam, Finland, Laos and Guatemala in Salt Lake City the Model United Nations spent three days in legislative debate on resolutions at mock sessions. In weekly meetings after school they prepared for the convention.

Whether it was making the play seem like a real happening, turning "South Pacific" into a Broadway production, or just creating a soft mood at dances, the lighting crew was always on the job. They produced unusual sound effects to go along with the assemblies and lyceums.

It's a tough job to design and construct a shower that really showers, build a grass hut with a back side that doubles as a lieutenant's office or paint a realistic island on a canvas back drop. These were just a few of the problems the stage and scenery crew faced in developing the scenery for "South Pacific," the school musical.

Volunteer MARCHING BAND gains fame and several invitations for summer performances

One hundred and fourteen students of various shapes and sizes voluntarily met after school regularly to practice for the band performances. At these practices the members learned new and impressive formations. The group played for two of the Sky View home games and for the half time show in the game against Pocatello in the Minidome. They had the opportunity to play for the Utah State University Homecoming Parade and at the University of Utah half time show. The band is becoming well known as they have been invited to the South Dakota Rapids Band Festival June 2-4 and to the Calgary Stampede being held in Alberta, Canada during the week of July 6-15. Mr. John Manning and Mr. Bill Bertolio are the advisors for the group.

BAND graduates celebrate Alumni Day

About fourteen band alumni came to Sky View's band room on December 18 to decorate and celebrate Alumni Day. Mistletoe was hung above Mr. Manning's podium and a Christmas tree was decorated. Each alumnus brought his instrument and stayed during the day to play with the Symphonic Band and other classes of band students.

Two new upright tubas were added to the Symphonic Band. These tubas helped to give the music better balance by sending their sound up instead of out.

Symphonic Band members attended the Utah State Fair in September to play in the open theater on the Fairgrounds.

ORCHESTRA enters Regional Contest

Selected members of the orchestra joined band members in practicing long hours to accompany members of the musical cast in their production, "South Pacific." On March 22 the orchestra traveled to Box Elder to enter a Solo and Ensemble Contest. A regular quartet at Sky View consisted of Alan Allred on the violin, Val Simmons, viola, Paul Cardon, cellist, Boyd Edwards, bass.

Mr. Bertolio, a first year teacher at Sky View, helped Mr. John Manning with the Concert Band. They lined the band room walls with egg cartons to improve acoustics. Sky View was the only school to have two bands attend the Weber State Invitational.

Second violinist, Emeline Talbot learns, along with the rest of the first hour orchestra class, the music for Sky View's production of "South Pacific."

A CAPPELLA CHOIR hosts Guest Conductor Ramsey

Guest conductor, Dr. William Ramsey, lead the A Cappella Choir in a November performance for the public and studentbody. Dr. Ramsey, who conducts the Choral Singers of USU, taught the choir Negro spirituals in the class sessions he attended.

Along with eight other choirs from schools as far away as Grace, Idaho, Sky View's choir sang Christmas carols on temple hill to help celebrate turning on the lights. Afterwards the LDSSA invited the choirs to the USU Institute where students were warmed with hot chocolate and chili. Later in December they toured Salt Lake, singing on Mid-day and at the Primary Children's Hospital, where each student donated money totaling about $50.

Musical ORGANIZATIONS give Sky View good name through concert tours and assemblies

Front Porch Majority featured in USU's Pops Concert. KSL's Midday, school assemblies at senior and junior high schools, and community clubs received over thirty invitations to perform in Utah. In the spring they toured with the choir.

Studio Band members created a winning spirit among the fans at a game between the Stars, Utah's ABA championship basketball team, and the Indiana Pacers. They also provided the music for many dances and kept all home games lively with the appropriate drum rolls and horn blasts when the Bobcats scored. All members had to practice either before or after school because there was no class for Studio Band. Geoff Smith as leader of the group, organized and supervised it.

Weekly visits to churches made it so the Performing Girls' Glee's songs were almost all religious. Each week at church meetings around the valley, they presented an entire program. This not only gave them the chance to sing but also helped improve their speaking ability. The girls in this class composed original songs and learned new ones.

Sky View VISTAUNS march for Utah Stars

Sky View Vistauns marched for a Utah Stars game at the Salt Palace in Salt Lake. They also performed at Weber State and Utah State Universities and at many home games.

Debbie Ballam, President, made up the routines using diamonds, circles and spoke formations. She helped plan fund raising projects, where Vistauns washed cars, held bake sales and sold shampoo. Hair styles were changed from short shags to the long, softly curled shag.

Sophomore Pep Club helped cheerleaders generate spirit for games and pep rallies. Sitting in a special section, they lead the student body in cheers. Wearing white skirts and blue sweater vests on days of the games, some pep-clubbers decorated halls with appropriate banners like "Scalp the Warriors" while others made badges, urging a win for the players.

Vistauns work out daily in their fourth hour class and stay after school usually three nights a week to perfect their marching formations. Debbie Hall limbers up her leg muscles so that she can do the high Vistaun kicks.

New ROTC program at Sky View gives enrolled cadets military experience for future service

New at Sky View was ROTC Company D. It was first discovered that an ROTC chapter would be appreciated at Sky View when two Sky View students attended a Logan unit meeting. ROTC held many benefits for the cadets, the most popular being the draft deferment. Cadets took field trips and learned military maneuvers.

Thirty-two students made up the debate team this year, with Mr. Alan Harris as debate coach. Debates were held against Logan, Box Elder, Weber, Bingham, and Skyline. Competition was also held at state and region. The much debated topic this year was "The jury system in the U.S. should be significantly changed."

FUTURE FARMERS receive Kansas honors

Three boys brought recognition to our Sky View Chapter of the Future Farmers of America by ranking eleventh in the National Poultry Judging Contest at Kansas City, Missouri. Another honor came to them after Jay Dee Anderson finished as one of twelve receiving highest classification in the same judging contest. Morgan Molt, the only girl in the club, helped further the FFA's accomplishments when her steer won Grand Champion at the Utah State Fair. FFA members could earn degrees on the chapter, state and national level.

Homecoming in October found Key Club members decorating goal posts for the game with Bonneville. The Key Club, for boys only, took on the responsibility of raising the flag at ball games and decorating the Student Center for a dance. In the spring they attended a three-day district convention in Salt Lake.

Helping to satisfy students' appetites at football games, the Lettermen's Club sold doughnuts at half time. The club sponsored a basketball game played on donkeys' backs between club members and male faculty members. A breakfast and steak fry at the end of school highlighted the year.

Ski, Aquatics, Vaqueros, Rodeo CLUBS promote physical fitness through vigorous exercise

Very successful ski swap, sponsored by the Ski Club gave students a chance to buy, sell or trade ski equipment—skis, poles, bindings and other ski accessories. Lodge parties, car washes and hot dog sales to the football fans made this a busy year for the Ski Club. The club also sold ski booklets at a discount to the students.

Aquatics Club members enjoyed timing swimming meets, especially since it meant getting out of school. Weekly meetings included a refreshing swim in the pool and a lively game of water basketball with a potluck snack following the swim.

Bronco riding and calf roping were only two of the skills the Rodeo Club practiced in hopes of qualifying for the High School Rodeo in Colorado during June. The Rodeo presented stiff competition since it was open to all high school students. The Vaqueros also practiced their barrel racing and pole bending with the best performers receiving trophies given by the other club members. White Pine Lake was the site for the annual spring ride and steak barbecue. The club also rode to historical and scenic points of interest.

Language CLUBS celebrate holidays according to customs of France, Germany, and Mexico

"Noel Nouvelet" and "Il Est Né le Divin Enfant" caroled the French Club in Logan stores during the Christmas holidays. After singing in several stores members sampled fondue, hot chocolate, and une crème, part of a demonstration of French cuisine. Bake sales helped provide money for the banquet at the Bluebird.

German Club members tried their hands at flying kites in the March winds and in February held a Valentine's Day party. The traditional bicycle ride through North Logan and Hyde Park climaxed the year.

Spanish Club members celebrated Halloween as the national Mexican Holiday, "El Día de las muertos," when the dead hopefully return to eat the food set out the night before. "Sink the Lakers" served as the theme of the club's homecoming float.

In its second year, the Nash 'Doi Club learned beadcraft and helped members learn more about their languages and cultures. The club welcomed all races interested in learning more about Indian cultures.

FHA prepares packages for servicemen

Visits to the Logan L.D.S. Hospital and Sunshine Terrace allowed members of the FNA to see nursing in action. Nurses from different medical backgrounds shared their experiences at monthly meetings. At their Christmas party, the club made candy for a Sub-for-Santa box. Each member brought a gift for a person in a needy family.

FHA members sold Halloween contracts to residents of Cache Valley to insure against pranks. Club members cleaned soaped windows and paper from homes whose owners had purchased contracts.

Club members met every month for a party, lecture or a special service project. During November members brought articles for Thanksgiving packages to servicemen overseas. For Christmas the club warmed-up with hot chocolate and chili before getting in buses to Christmas carol. They sang and delivered a box of Christmas goodies to elderly people in Smithfield.

Successful CADET TEACHING expands

Future Teachers' Association sponsored more cadet teachers after last year's program proved successful. Mrs. Reva Wallis, supervisor of elementary schools in the district, met with the club to discuss an enlargement of the program.

Posters hung in the halls and safety flares were sold as part of a campaign to promote safety. Four delegates from the Safety Club participated in the Teen Traffic Convention in Salt Lake City.

Moore's Business Firm, USU Business Dept., Utah Mortgage, Bell Telephone Company and the Herald Journal were Business Club field trips. Special speakers, Dr. Lloyd Bartholome and Dean Helen Lundstrum helped students in planning their careers. The DECA Club kept busy raising money to finance their Employer-Employee Banquet. They also took over the business of the musical, which meant one less headache for Mr. Loosle.

CLUBS' activities include tournaments

Tournaments with fellow members and meets with other schools gave the Chess Club a chance to pick up new techniques and to increase the players ability to concentrate. During the weekly meetings members advanced in their position by a process of double elimination, playing until they lost two games.

"Yea, it's a strike!" and members of the Bowling Club began the year right. After watching filmstrips to learn bowling skills, the club met every other Tuesday night at Logan Lanes to practice and perfect what they had learned. The last party of the year honored members who were outstanding bowlers and top scorers.

Touring Springville and University of Utah art galleries and taking weekend trips to the art department of Utah State University introduced members of the Art Club to Utah's artists.

STUDENTBODY

One in a mass—working for a better self,
a better school.

Studying, trying, succeeding, failing . . .
Each an individual.

Observing and helping during the intense joy of accomplishment or the depression of failure.

Looking for wrong and right, happiness and sorrow, failure and success, then . . .
Choosing "one's own thing."

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL stresses motto 'All for one, One for all, All for Sky View High'

"If Nixon can go to China, we can go to state!" Each Sky View organization tried for the most original slogan to spur the basketball team to the supreme effort, beating Bonneville, that would mean a trip to state. The Executive Council sponsored this special poster week and pep rally before the crucial game. To build spirit for the game, Chairman Sharman Pitcher outlined other accomplishments already made during the year (debaters won second place in the Weber State Invitational, largest in the West, wrestlers went to State). After A Cappella Choir sang the school song, the studentbody joined hands and repeated the school theme, "All for one, One for all, All for Sky View High!" Balloons fell from the light ledge to climax the rally. At the close of another assembly, Chairman Pitcher challenged the studentbody to try to wear a smile all day and spread cheer to make a real "Happy Valley."

STUDENT SENATE, COORDINATING COUNCIL initiate dress codes for girls

Discussions in the Student Senate and Coordinating Council resulted in girls wearing pantsuits from December to March. These two governing bodies met separately to discuss problems and ideas related to the school.

All the students were heard as they voiced their opinions to home room senators and presidents of organizations who in turn brought up their views in the meetings.

Cleanliness in the halls and the Student Center, dress codes, student discipline, a new style for a school sweatshirt, and planning different activities concerned the groups. Senators reminded home room students to clean the Student Center when their turn came. If they failed, signs were posted and the Center was locked so that students could not enjoy the relaxation and fun it had to offer.

During year SENIORS reflect, then looking forward, make decisions and future plans

Seniors elected to the class presidency were Kirk Strawser, Joe Campbell and Marie Beutler.

Kirk, president of the class, came to Sky View his junior year. An all-around athlete, he has played Varsity football, basketball and wrestling.

Secretary of the class, Marie Beutler, worked as a candy striper at Logan L.D.S. Hospital. She liked horseback riding, skiing and playing the flute.

Joe managed the Varsity basketball team, showed dairy animals at fairs and won prizes.

The Senior Prom centered around the theme of 'Arabian Nights.' Strings of tin foil beads hung from the ceiling. The royalty entered through a tent, giving the effect of the Arabian deserts. Advisors were Mrs. Greer Baird, Mr. Myron Benson, Mr. Sherman Lindhardt and Mr. Brian Chambers.

JUNIORS win Traveling Class Trophy for their Homecoming float 'Dam the Lakers'

Bruce Traveller, Steve Price, and Rosemary Johnson headed the Junior class. Bruce, president, studied Algebra III-trigonometry and often spent noon hours playing ping pong in the Student Center.

Vice-President Steve Price enjoyed playing junior varsity football, wrestling and skiing. Wrestling, however, prevented Steve from doing as much skiing on Beaver slopes as he usually liked to.

Eating cherries out of the chocolate shell of a cherry chocolate was Rosemary's "thing." Sixth hour drama productions was her favorite class.

Besides winning the traveling trophy for the best class float for Homecoming, Juniors planned an assembly and had the responsibility of planning the Junior Prom. Advising and helping them were Chairman Kenneth Roe, and committee members, Terry Griffin, Leon Oswald and Carolyn Bankhead.

SOPHOMORES find new experiences, wide variety in Sky View High School curriculum.

Sophomores entered into a "new world," electing President Bruce Miller, Vice-President Jeff Yonk and Secretary Barbara Butters. Jeff and Bruce also wrestled and played football. Barbara liked swimming and played the piano.

Sophomores sponsored the December Snow Frolic Dance. Silver snow flakes floated beneath a sky of white plastic. A sparkling chandelier added to the snowy effect in the cafeteria.

Sophomores' assembly 'Christmas Is . . .' parodied the song, 'The Twelve Days of Christmas.' Gifts included a sophomore in a tree, two Saunders' twins and seven bathing beauties (seven sophomore boys). Helping were Mr. J. Robertson, Mr. J. Merkley, Mrs. M. Anhder and Mrs. B. Esplin.

Observing the year in retrospect, the issue of most concern continued to be dress code . . . Observed for the first time at Sky View were boys in moustaches and girls in pant suits . . . Student officers tried to handle student conduct and give students a bigger share in governing themselves . . . The basketball team returned to state with an exciting division win over Bonneville . . . Campaign posters sparked student elections . . . Deer hunt afforded a half day holiday . . . Teachers sit out the salary price freeze . . . The new furnace furnished one-half day vacation as motors stopped . . . Media Center overflowed . . . Homecoming parade and rally snowed out for first time . . . Spirit posters lined the halls to promote school unity . . . Track and tennis sweep field winning firsts in division play to climax year.

We ask ourselves,
"Is anything ordinary?"
Observing the world around us—
Seeing beyond the immediate surface.
'Live for today,
Knowing that today is just tomorrow's yesterday
And will be remembered always.'
