NATHAN SHELTON, MRS. HOOP

KINDERGARTEN

Kindergarten learned all about mistakes! We read the book Beautiful Oops! by Barney Satlzberg, and learned many different ways to create something new when mistakes happen. Students took papers with holes, paint spills, rips, and coffee stains and turned them into something beautiful.

FIRST GRADE

First grade took a trip down texture lane this month. They learned all about what texture is and practiced the art of texture rubbings. They searched high and low around the art room to find different textures to record on their papers. They rubbed an oil pastel over their paper and watched the magic appear.

COLT MADARIS, MRS. RUH

KAMDEN JOHNSON, MRS. WOODLEY

SECOND GRADE

Second grade dove into new territory this month! They practiced new watercolor techniques to create three abstract paintings. Then, after learning about foreground, middle ground, and background they tore their paintings into pieces to create abstract landscapes. They were skeptical when they heard the news that they were ripping their paintings but slowly and surely they were happy with their new masterpieces.

Alice Zou, Mrs. Chambers

THIRD GRADE

Third grade learned all about patterns this month! Students practiced pattern skills by covering their owl drawings with unique patterns. Some students used patterns to create realistic feathers, while others chose whimsical designs on their nocturnal friends.

Parker Richards, Mr. Durham

FOURTH GRADE

Fourth grade learned about the process of printmaking this month! They carved their very own printing plates, which will be used to create a cityscape. Students will use their beautiful watercolor paintings as the background for their new masterpieces.

HENERY KINGSBOROUGH, MRS. MITCHELL

FIFTH GRADE

Fifth grade is seeing things in new colors! The students had the opportunity to learn about using color to create emphasis in their artwork. Students colored only a portion of their drawings while shading the remaining portion. These works sure will stand out!
