Fiction Book Buzz Example:

Bunnicula by James Howe is the hilarious fiction story of a new pet arriving in the Monroe household. They live in a nice, quiet two-story house. The story is told by the family dog, Harold. Chester the cat is convinced that their new pet bunny is a vampire! Chester thinks that the bunny is going to attack the family, and he tries to warn the Monroe family through several funny events! You won't believe what Chester does with garlic and what happens on the dining room table! Read this book to find out what happens and you will have a good laugh! This book is part of a series and you should read them in order. I would recommend this book to anyone who likes a spooky and funny story. You can find this book at the O'Neal Library or your local bookstore!

Non-fiction Book Buzz Example:

I just read a great biography called Who Was George Washington by Roberta Edwards and illustrated by True Kelly. This is the true story of the life of George Washington. George Washington was born on February 22, 1732 in the colony of Virginia. On January 6, 1759, George married a girl named Martha Dandridge Custis. During the Revolutionary War, George was the commander of the American colonist troops. He led the army to victory over the British. In 1789 George became the first president of the United States. Read this book to find out many other exciting and interesting facts about our country's first president! I would recommend this book to anyone who like history. This book is part of the Who Was series, and it can be found in any local library!
