From May 1 through June 30, graphic art students' work will be exhibited at the National Women's Rights National Park inspired by the theme of, "How can we bring about change in the world around us?" Theme summary: We live in a day where there are many divisions within our society; we have the power to heal those divisions. Not only that, but we have the power to make a permanent and lasting impression on the world. Improving it as we go along. We would like to challenge participants to think about the day-to-day challenges they face, and how they can overcome them in order to bring about a better future -- not just in themselves -- but others as well.

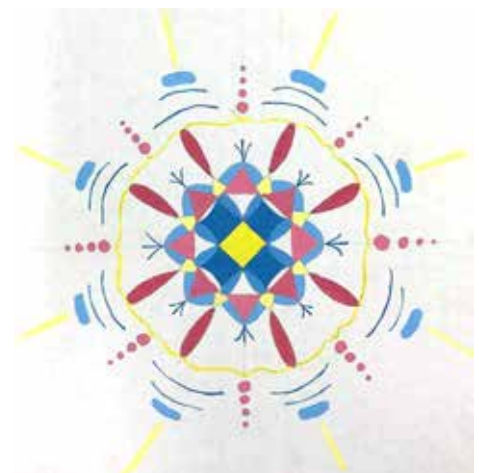

Lastly, the dates have been set for the Annual Wellsville District Art Show at the David A. Howe Public Library. The dates for this annual event are Wednesday, May 16, through Friday, June 1. Kindergarten
Winter
Makerspace

ABOVE - Students in Mrs. Giopulos' Kindergarten Class have been enjoying some fun winter activities and then writing about them during Writers' Workshop. The students went sledding and built a snowman, and then wrote about these fun activities. The kindergarteners have also been learning about two- and three-dimensional shapes in math class. As a culminating activity, students were asked to imagine, plan, and design a snowman in the Elementary Makerspace using two- and three-dimensional shapes. The kids recorded their thought processes in a booklet and then created their own unique snowperson. The students problem-solved and worked together to cut, tape, and glue their "one-of-a-kind" creations.

AT RIGHT - This year, the Wellsville Hall of Fame committee received 13 nominations, and they selected four individuals for our Hall of Fame Class. 2018 HOF inductees shown left to right: Tiffany McLaughlin, Michelle Manikowski Woodward, Dr. Byron Chandler, and Hailey Brown, who was represented by her father, Peter Brown.
